FORM OF BEQUEST.

I give and bequeath to the "Industrial Home for Girls," established in Philadelphia, dollars.

The Committee to receive applications for the admission of Girls into the "Home," or from persons wanting Girls, meet at the "Home" every Tuesday morning at 10½ o'clock.

Citizens can visit the Institution every day but Saturday and Sunday. The "Industrial Home for Girls," 762 South Tenth street.

FOURTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

THERE are several reasons why it seems especially desirable at this time to bring the Industrial Home for Girls, whose Fourteenth Annual Report is now presented, more distinctly and intelligently before the minds of the public. One is, that after fourteen years of existence, and while between three and four hundred girls have been received under its care in that time, it is still so little known in the community, that the question is not infrequently asked even by those interested in benevolent objects and enterprises, when they hear this Home mentioned, "What and where is it?" Others who know of its existence, mistake its precise purpose, and think it only one of many established for exactly the same class of persons. In order, therefore, if possible, to make this Institution and its object more clearly understood and appreciated, and to bring it to the notice of those who would encourage every effort made on behalf of the poor and needy whom we "have always with" us, it is the desire of the Managers to disseminate more widely than usual this Report, and to secure earnest attention to its statements.

Another reason for this desire is, that an important step has been taken during the last year, which perhaps needs some explanation.

A year ago at this time, the family at the Home numbered thirty-two or thirty-three girls, for most of the winter, while the house was not in any respect adapted for more than twenty at the outside. The dining-room was so small that the girls could not all take their meals at the same time, which gave much additional trouble to those having charge of them. The bathing arrangements, also, were utterly insufficient for the family—consisting as they did, of one bath-room for the entire household—and this under circumstances that rendered it particularly important to have ample conveniences for this purpose. The sleeping-rooms were not equal to the requirements of such a family—the matron being often obliged to put two girls in rooms that were only intended for single occupants, and no suitable provision for cases of sickness being possible.

It was out of the question, moreover, to teach the girls properly to wash and iron, because the arrangements for this department were so entirely inadequate and inconvenient. That bug-bear of almost all families—washing-day—legitimately, according to all household almanacs, belonging to Monday alone, was necessarily extended over half the week sometimes, because of the impossibility of having a large wash done all at once.

The school-room besides was so small, that it was with difficulty that the girls could all be seated in it at the same time, and the proper routine of a well-ordered school could scarcely be followed in so limited a space; while if any of the Managers came in to visit the school, the room was crowded and uncomfortable for all.

After enduring these evils for some years, it was resolved to attempt to remedy them. The first idea was to convert the stable on the rear of the lot into a laundry and school-room, which it was thought could be done at small cost. But after a careful survey of the premises by a builder, the committee who had the matter in charge were convinced by his statements that this plan was not practicable—the stable being much dilapidated and quite unsuitable for the purpose. It was then proposed to take down the stable and use the material in adding to the house itself by an extension of the back building. There were several objections found to this, however, in the inconvenient shape of rooms thus given, &c.; and it was finally decided to rebuild the back part of the house entirely, using of course the old material of the stable and house as far as it would go. This would give a new, convenient back-building, with laundry, bath-rooms, dining-room, additional dormitories, and especially a fine, large school-room, with all the arrangements found to be so absolutely essential to the proper accommodation and instruction of the inmates of the Home.

This plan has now been carried out, at a cost of five thousand dollars. Of this sum, $2693 05 has been raised (entirely outside of the regular subscriptions) and paid over to the builder, while $2306 95 remains to be paid by Feb. 29, 1872. The work was begun in August, and finished in November; and a building, handsome in its perfect plainness and appropriateness to its object—substantial, but with the strictest regard to economy evident in all its details—and affording facilities for doing the legitimate work of the Institution well, rewards those who have planned and labored to secure this result. We say the legitimate work of the Institution. It is not proposed or expected, to send forth from it finished servants, who shall be far more perfect in their sphere than those who employ them are in theirs. The true object of this Home is to give girls good principles and habits of work—upon which foundation can be built all that goes to form a good servant, in every sense of the words. This, and to befriend and shelter young girls in need of such help, is its twofold aim.

It would not be right to omit speaking in connection with the new building, of the kindness and generosity of Mr. Wm. Chapman, the builder who undertook and carried through the work, nearly to completion. He died suddenly, when the building was almost finished, to the heartfelt sorrow of those who had met him so constantly and with so much pleasure during the progress of the work.

The Managers wish here to express their gratitude to all who have contributed towards this improvement to the house, and they ask yet this one favor more of them, which is, that they will pay a visit to the Institution. If any one hearing of it now for the first time, or already interested in it through their pockets or otherwise, but a stranger to its doors, will come to 762 S. 10th street, and see the cheerful, convenient, orderly home there provided for the waifs who find their way to its proteeting care, and the opportunities there afforded for these girls to learn to do household work well, and to be taught in common English branches in school—we are sure that they will not regret having taken half an hour to find out “what and where this Home is.”

Twenty new girls have been received in the past year—fourteen have been placed out, ten returned to friends able to care for them, and four have found places for themselves.

The Managers feel that they have cause for uneasing thankfulness to God for the health which has blessed the Home so uniformly, even during the prevalence of disease in the city for the last four months. They close this Report with an appeal, which they would fain make so earnest that none who read it can turn from it without responding according to their honest ability. They ask for the means to pay fully for the improvements which they have made in their house, and to prosecute their work there without the anxiety from month to month which they often now feel, as to how their expenses shall be met.

In order to show the economy with which the affairs of the Home are managed, we append the following statement, calling attention also to the fact that no clothing, except shoes, has been purchased during the year, everything having been given by friends.
